

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A main module of an object oriented computer program is independent of the software domain and can be dynamically configured or reconfigured at runtime by domain specific dynamic link libraries. This main module is a generic main which is configured by a service configurator. A framework connector is provided as are a communications component and a asynchronous/asynchronous management component.